

Granary Close (Horley)

Situated between Waterside, Granary Close and Bakehouse Road is a small island of grass containing a variation of shrubs and trees. Some of the shrubs are of poor specimen and have outgrown their surroundings and the trees consist predominantly of Ash and Oak. One of the Oak trees contained on the island is of particular interest owning many features defining it as a Veteran Oak. There is a schedule of planned work to remove the shrubs and crown lift some of the trees in order to tidy up the space and it has been suggested that the introduction of a wildflower bed would not only contribute to wildlife and ecosystems but help to preserve the quality of the area adding to its sense of character and visual appeal. It has been suggested that a mix consisting of Oxeye daisy and Poppy would be in fitting with the formality of the area retaining a natural feel to the island and wild rose beds created, providing cover/hedging and as a nectar source for pollinators. Note -Flower bed is 3m circumference from the wildflower sign in middle of site.

Map of site- Granary Close

 Oxeye daisy

 Rosa Rugosa Rubra

 Poppy

